Local Group Appeals To U. S. Chamber Of Commerce In Washington - Asks Consideration For Small Business - Speaker Insists Tire Rationing Is Necessary

The board of directors of the Arlington Chamber of Commerce this week sent a lengthy letter to the United States Chamber of Commerce in Washington, D. C., calling attention to the fact that certain government restrictions are harming Arlington and its business. This was revealed by Earl A. Ryder, president of the Chamber at the February meeting held in the Old Mill on Tuesday evening.

Guest speaker at the meeting was Frank Reardon, manager of the truck tire department of the B. F. Goodrich company. Thomas Denellan, of West Medford, was among the guests at the dinner meeting.

Mr. Reardon contended that the rationing of rubber by the government has been urgent because 97 percent of our rubber comes from the Pacific war zone and from the moment Japan attacked Pearl Harbor, America's lifeline of rubber was severed.

"When Japan struck, our reserve of rubber was at its lowest ebb in fifteen years," Mr. Reardon stated. Explaining the cultivation of rubber in the Dutch East Indies, the speaker stated that a whole year's yield from two rubber trees is required

He is watching with personal interest the progress of Arlington in the three-week campaign under the direction of Chairman Arthur W. Sampson, he said. He congratulated Revere and Concord for their achievement in making their quotas early in the campaign and said that he looked for similar returns from many other communities long before the February 11 deadline.

"But if many continue to think in terms of peace-time generosity, we're not going to meet our goal," Cabot said.

Chairman Sampson encouraged all Arlington workers to complete their solicitation and see all possible prospects. It will be to the everlasting credit of the community if Arlington

Four Hundred Tons of Sand Distributed Here

Approximately 400 tons of sand, at a total cost of less than $150 were distributed to Arlington homes on Sunday as part of the Arlington Committee on Public Safety's air raid precaution program, it is revealed in a statement issued yesterday by Walter T. Chamberlain, chairman of the committee. He also took occasion to thank all who had a part in making the townwide distribution possible.

He said:

"In the last two issues of your paper you were kind enough to broadcast to your readers an appeal for volunteer workers for the distribution of sand to all the homes in Arlington and to further instruct the citizens about having the containers ready to receive their share of it."

"Without imposing on your unfailing spirit of ready cooperation, I do wish to express through your paper to the many persons involved not only my own personal appreciation, but also that of the Arlington Committee on Public Safety and the citizens of the town for a big job done well and completely in one day. Early last week it appeared that we were to be disappointed in the number of available volunteers, but when the hour arrived we found that actually in a few cases we had men who reported for assignment for which no assignment was possible. That is real Arlington spirit."

"It is not possible to mention all by name nor even to write each worker as a complete list of names is not available. I do want to mention by groups the

"Arrangements have been made for those people who may have accidentally not received sand. They may secure it by visiting the Town yard at 1083 Mass. avenue with their containers where an additional supply has been provided for that purpose."

"In closing, I do wish to particularly thank the Board of Public Works and James R. Smith, its chairman, who undertook the responsibility and planning of this necessary project and I repeat my thanks to every last man who participated in any way."

Arlington's Stop & Shop Is Center for Thrifty Buyers

Interior view of Arlington's Stop and Shop where a tremendous variety of groceries, meats and vegetables is conveniently displayed.

Stop and Shop's modern supermarket at 483 Massachusetts Avenue, which is featuring many weekly savings to help its customers, especially during war time.

Almost five years ago Stop and Shop opened its doors at 483 Massachusetts Avenue to bring sensational savings on quality foods to the budgetwise families of Arlington. Since that day in April, 1938, thousands of dollars have been saved and as many appetites have been satisfied by the values and good things to eat at this modern supermarket. Customer confidence has been the cornerstone of Stop and Shop's unusual success, confidence in its prices, its foods, its policies. The store itself is attractive and neat as a pin. Fixtures are modern and sparkling clean. Each department is complete in itself and colorfully laid out.

All foods and household needs can be bought under one roof at Stop and Shop. That was its original appeal to women who appreciated shopping convenience, and it is still an important factor. Everything from soup to nuts and back again is displayed on the shelves at Stop and Shop, all of it fresh and inviting, tops in quality.

Fancy and staple groceries are gathered together in tremendous variety. Crisp, colorful fruits and vegetables are delivered to Stop and Shop regularly, at the peak of their eating goodness. Dairy products are pure and wholesome country fresh. Breads and cakes of the famous Buttercup variety have a wonderful melt-in-your-mouth appeal. Meats of every cut and type are selected by experts and sold with a money-back guarantee. The management of Stop and Shop is that sure customers will be satisfied!

The self-service way of shopping was a unique innovation when Arlington's Stop and Shop first introduced it to local residents in 1938. It quickly became popular and is an outstanding feature at the supermarket today.

A year ago self-service was extended to the fruit and vegetable department. This was an outstanding innovation, one that met with overwhelming success. For the first time in Arlington, women were able to hand pick the fruits and vegetables they bought in a public store. It was like going into a garden to gather what they wanted.

The meat department at Stop and Shop is one of which the management is inordinately proud, and with reason. Every cut of meat sold at the supermarket has been personally selected by experts to insure satisfaction.

Ray Fleming, meat manager at Arlington's Stop and Shop at 483 Massachusetts Avenue, is well known to local shoppers and is held in high esteem by them.

A FLAG OF DEFIANCE

It is common knowledge that when we in America tackle a job, we do it wholeheartedly and do not stop at half-way measures. Right now, this country's main task is to defeat the enemies of democracy and freedom. The resulting drastic regulations and vast appropriations have literally stunned most of us.

However, we cannot help but being alarmed at the attitude of certain businesses which are showing so much concern over the war and the regulations which go with it that they are neglecting the very freedoms the preservation of which they are now fighting for. True, this is a period of readjustment. However, we might take a lesson from England. To quote the Boston Herald, "Our English brethren are making a mighty effort to subdue the enemy, but they are discontinuing just as few as possible of those peacetime practices which do not interfere with the successful prosecution of the war program. . . . Stubborn folks, those English, and just as stubborn in clinging to their wholesome ways of life at home as in fighting the enemy abroad."

According to the London branch of Lord and Thomas, business men in England are proclaiming their wares just as eagerly as ever before. "Every advertisement appearing today is a flag of defiance; is direct testimony to someone's faith in the future; is someone's toast to victory. The public is developing stronger than ever habits of studying advertising columns for instructions and advice . . . of utmost importance in their lives," the report states.

The British government itself is the largest single advertiser in the newspapers, placing 17 percent of all advertisements published, with copy relative to rationing orders, etc.

A plea for resumption of near-normal business activity was voiced this week by the president of our own Chamber of Commerce here in Arlington. As he expressed it, we are all willing to make sacrifices to win victory over our enemies, but we want to do it sensibly. The sooner government officials can help business make necessary readjustments and inspire confidence, the sooner will the way be paved to higher morale and victory. Not war — only defeat — destroys the ways of democracy and the enterprise of a free people.

Advertising plays an important part in promoting business which eventually must pay its share of the cost of this war.

An attitude of defeatism at home and in business will never bring victory abroad.

—Firemen responded to an alarm from Box 266 shortly after midnight Tuesday for an over-heated boiler at 88 Melrose street. —John J. Mahoney, of 46a Fairmount street, of the U. S. Army Air Corps is now stationed at Jefferson Barracks, Missouri.

BOOKS FOR THE BOYS IN SERVICE

At the end of a busy day of drilling and military training, the boys in the army and navy welcome a few hours of relaxation. Many of these young men abruptly ended their studies to join the armed forces; they would welcome books to continue their studies, with the hope that they can resume their place in their chosen field of endeavor after the war is over. Others would like to reach out for a book just to enjoy their favorite pastime—reading.

Unfortunately, there are not enough books on hand to take care of this great need. That is why the National Defense Book campaign is being sponsored by the American Library Association and other organizations. Mrs. Lucinda Spofford is director of the drive locally. Arlingtonians can help provide much needed books for soldiers and sailors by contributing worthwhile books. These may be left at any of the local libraries.

The goal is ten million books for the men in the service. Will you give at least one book which you judge would be welcomed by some young man who is already giving up considerably to fight for America?

The NEWS OBSERVES

George H. Greim, chief air raid warden, cautions that said delivered to local residents last Sunday should be thoroughly dry before being used for emergency services. The best procedure is to spread the sand on the cellar floor until such time as it is perfectly dry.

Let's "Keep 'em Flying." The civilian defense office suggests that private homes fly the American flag as an inspiration for ever greater war effort. Be proud of it; it's the flag with General MacArthur's men in the Philippines where repeated Jap attacks are being gallantly repulsed.

State-wide registration of 4,000,000 persons eligible to receive sugar is being contemplated.

In a warning to women to avoid pantry-panic, Mrs. Robert Homans, director of the W. C. C. Division of the Massachusetts Committee on Public Safety said at a press conference this week,

"Hoarding is the worst possible form of keeping up the Joneses. Hoarding is a form of hysteria. Women are the worst offenders and they are allowing themselves to be led into a situation that is disturbing our economy. There are no real or threatened shortages of any kind of food products in this country."

Tokyo predicts the fall of Singapore before February 11. Additional reinforcements may save the grave situation for the Allies, however.

The members of the Frances Willard Commonweal club of Arlington Centre at their last meeting purchased a United States defense bond to the amount of two hundred dollars. As this club has a membership of only fourteen members this is considered a real all-out-for defense move.

Coach Ostergren came to Arlington high school in 1931 at which time the local football team played smaller schools whose teams are now in Class "C". Since then, Arlington has been a perennial contender for the state championship in "the Class "A" division, playing such teams as Medford, Melrose, Waltham and Malden, each fall.

Outstanding among Coach Ostergren's proteges is Tom O'Connor, Medford high school's coach whom Ostergren taught at St. Bonaventure and whom Ostergren had as assistant coach at Arlington high.

Saturday evening's testimonial is scheduled to start at 7 o'clock. Dress is optional.

Beyond Price

Whether serving the lowly or the great the quality of our service cannot differ.

MONEY regulates standards of living. Everyday needs are classified by grades and prices accordingly. Although there is less servility in this country, higher priced merchandise and service are usually accompanied by a higher degree of consideration and solicitude. People of large financial resources attain a certain importance denied to mortals of moderate means.

But at the entrance to this modern funeral establishment the sale of privileges stops.

In our mortuary there are no luxuries of facilities or appointments nor solicitous attendance furnished to one class and denied to another. The casket may symbolize financial status but the cost of a funeral be it high or low cannot add to nor detract from the true dignity, memorable beauty and heartfelt respect present in every ceremony we conduct.

Auxiliary Police

Monday's meeting of the local auxiliary police, the volunteer civilian defense unit supervised by Police Lieut. Daniel Barry, was highlighted by the awarding of commissions and warrants to the personnel and also by the surprise appearance of Mrs. Irving Brackett who spoke concerning her recent experiences in Hawaii.

Chief Archie F. Bullock awarded commissions to the officers of the auxiliary force and warrants to all other volunteer members. He then introduced Mrs. Brackett who is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Fitch, 66 Freeman street.

State Representative Hollis Gott also addressed the group, complimenting them for their volunteer efforts. The Auxiliary Police now has full membership of 300 local volunteers. A waiting list has been established at Police Headquarters.

Motor Corps and Canteen

The Motor Corps and Canteen of the Massachusetts Women's Defense Corps of Arlington, were summoned to a special meeting by Captain Gladys Parks at the Arlington Gas Light company on Tuesday. An exceptionally fine program of choral music will be given under the direction of Kenneth G. Kelley, professor of music education at Boston University, guest conductor. The accompanist of the Society is Miss Edith Blackadar, well-known piano teacher. An unusual combination of instruments will be heard, flute, harp and cello. Mrs. Helen Bedford, the harpist, enjoys wide popularity in this vicinity. Hannah Sherman is a pupil of Karl Barth and of Mr. Droeghmanns of the Boston Symphony. Claude Montoux, the flutist, is the son of Pierre Montoux, former conductor of the Boston Symphony Orchestra.

Chamber Of Commerce

to provide the rubber which goes into a single tire. Five to seven years are required to grow a rubber tree before latex can be gotten from it.

Brazil has produced less than 3 percent of our rubber in the past ten years, and it would take at least ten years to get enough rubber out of that country because its plantations have been neglected, Mr. Reardon said.

In his opinion, synthetic rubber is our only hope, and synthetic rubber for civilian use will not be available before 13 months. The prime basis of synthetic rubber, as shown in an actual demonstration before the local business men and women, is American black oil, refined in this country. All American companies have already pooled their efforts to produce during the coming year one-half in synthetic rubber, of what we used in 1941.

Until sufficient synthetic rubber can be produced for use on private cars and trucks, Mr. Reardon urged his listeners to conserve their tires in every way possible because he believes the rubber shortage is no "false alarm."

The Chamber of Commerce letter sent to Washington, D. C.,
